EXPERTS IN THEOLOGY
MAY BE CALLED

THE LAHAINALUNA CASE MAY
YET PROVE A CASE OF SCIENCE
VS. THEOLOGY.

Will it be necessary to call ministers of the Gospel as expert witnesses in the Lahainaluna College case? And will the issue before the Supreme Court finally become one of science and theology? These are questions suggested by the peculiar nature of the case, the real issue being as to what sort of religious instruction is given at the Lahaina institution.

Deputy Attorney General Presser, who has represented the Territory in the matter, is preparing the answer to the case. It is understood that it will claim that, as the Territory is not teaching anything contrary to the "faith of the fathers," as set forth in the confession of faith published yesterday in The Star. On the other hand it is claimed, no faith at all is decided, by contrary to the "faith of the fathers," and the Board of Missions is in a position to argue, it is said, that in teaching no religion at Lahaina the Territory is violating its pledge not to teach anything contrary to the faith of the fathers.

Another feature of the old agreement which has been noted is its requirement that the institution shall teach "sound literature" and "solid science." There is room for a wide controversy as to just what is "sound literature" and the court will be up against it if it tries to decide. As for the "solid science" proviso there are those who declare it incompatible with the teaching of the faith of the fathers as set forth in 1849.

FUSION HANGING
IN THE BALANCE

HOME RULE COMMITTEE HAD NO
AUTHORITY TO MAKE TERMS WITH THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Efforts of Democrats to secure fusion with the Home Rule party for the approaching county campaign, have not been productive of any results. The Democrats seem hopeful that they will arrive at some satisfactory adjustment of interests. Last night a conference of committees from the two parties was held but no agreement was reached. The Democratic committee had full power to decide about the nomination of a joint ticket but the Home Rule committee had no such authority for it has been appointed by the Home Rule executive committee, while the other committee had its authority from the Democratic county convention.

The Democratic members decided not to enter into any detailed discussion of the matter under the circumstances, so no result was reached.

Everything is now in the air. No definite decision can be reached until the Home Rule convention meets on Saturday. In the meanwhile prominent Democrats who are in favor of fusion, are conferring with Home Rule leaders and assert that the prospects are very bright for arriving at terms.

The Democratic convention will meet Saturday evening at Waverley Hall.

REPORT TO CONGRESS

be gone over carefully and the report to congress will be made from that.

"Crossing to Maui" he continued, taking up the story of his trip again "we went to nearly every plantation and saw something of the ranches and home stands as well. Fortunately we reached Lahaina just after the strike began and saw the end of it. Possibly there may have been cause for uneasiness at the inception of the trouble but everything was quiet enough when I was there. From an outsider's standpoint it seemed to me that the authorities handled the trouble very well. Of course with a large foreign population in a more or less excited condition there is always the possibility of an outbreak which might become dangerous but I think that the danger at Lahaina is over now. I talked to several Japanese but there is always a difficulty in getting at the root of matters when an interpreter has to be used."

Dr. Neill will return on the S. S. China, meanwhile he will visit portions of Oahu, including the pineapple plantations at Wahiawa. He will not have time to go to Kaula but Dr. Clark has been over there.

The report will be ready for Congress late this fall and will be presented at the December sitting. It will include not only Dr. Neill's observations of Hawaiian conditions but also those of two of his agents who have been conducting an investigation along similar lines in Porto Rico.

OUR HEROES COMING

"The Coming of Our Heroes," with a chorus running something like this:
"Heroes, Heroes, he-he-he"
"Heroes, Heroes, he-he-he"

The return of our soldiers and our signal corps and our police force will be an event in our history. They are the first expedition that the Territory has sent away from the capital. The crowd responded without a murmur and did what was required of them and went through the numerous disagreeable features of the trip without a kick. It is up to the community to turn to and welcome the crowd back. It is ex-

NAONE AS CLERK AND STUDENT

THE PROSECUTION SUBPOENAS
A LARGE NUMBER OF WIT-NESSES IN REBUTTAL.

Witnesses followed one another in very quick succession this afternoon in the Naone murder trial, in rebuttal of the defense's testimony regarding Naone's insanity and his epileptic fits. Miss Brickwood, Miss Brown, Miss Sorenson, the Rev. H. H. Parker, J. S. Monarrat, George P. Castle and T. McCants Stewart were called in quick succession, and it is said that there are many others to appear.

The Rev. Parker said that he had known Naone from early childhood, and had met him a few days before the shooting of Naone's wife. Naone appeared to him to be an ordinary, sane boy. Misses Brickwood and Brown and Sorenson testified to having known Naone in their school classes, and that he appeared to be an average pupil. The witnesses also stated that they knew of no fits.

G. P. Castle said that Naone had been a regular attendant at his Sunday school class for about six years, beginning with 1892. He thought that the defendant was sane. J. S. Monarrat testified to having employed Naone in his office, as an attorney's clerk, and said that he did not know of any fits, also that Naone attended to his duties intelligently. T. McCants Stewart was called for the same purpose, having employed Naone in his office.

The members of the local quarantine service, who also employed Naone, have been called as witnesses, and it is said that they will testify regarding his habits and conduct while at the quarantine station.

CONSOLATION

See the maidens in the sea—
Just as happy as can be;
In a little while, ah me,
Frightened damozels we'll see,
Who will scream most frightful,
For to toes so pink and wee,
Cruel crabs attached will be—
Here endeth the maiden's glee.

Singing sea I may not hear,
Though I wish that I were there;
I must duty's burden bear
In the city grim and drear;
One thing only brings me cheer,
When my thoughts to seaside veer,
But the same is very dear:
There's no crabs in PRIMO BEER.
